COTTAGE SYSTEM FOR THE INDUSTRIAL HOME

Superintendent Skinner Believes That in This Manner Individuality of Child May Be Developed.

Charles W. Skinner, of the Industrial Home, is preparing to introduce a number of changes in the conduct of the institution, which he intends to put into effect as soon as possible. In talking of his plans, he said:

"I am one of those who do not believe in whipping children, if it can possibly be avoided. There are two ways to govern children—one through fear, the other by favor. I have been successful with the latter and hope to prove conclusively that it is just the method to insure a good conduct of the Industrial Home."

The Cottage System.

"Something new in the District of Columbia will be the cottage system of conducting its public institutions. The old is the congregate system, where all are herded together in two or three buildings, as in the institution as present. As the Secretary of the Navy has decided that the line of survey for the new naval observatory shall run directly through the main building, compelling us to hunt other quarters, there may be some delay in getting everything in shape right away."

"There will be eight or ten cottages erected, each to accommodate twenty boys or twenty girls, constituting a little family under a matron and an assistant matron, who will surround them with the proper home and family influences. The boys' row of cottages will be on one side of a street and the girls' row on the other. There will be a superintendent's cottage and a few other buildings, making quite a nice little village, but the location has not been determined upon by the commissioners."

Develops Personality.

"This cottage system develops the personality and domestic side of a child's character," continued the superintendent, "as it is based on the family and home principle, which is the basis of all American civilization."

length and much hardship verified the report that the Spanish fleet was in the harbor of Santiago. For that service Lieutenant Blue was advanced ten numbers. He is now in command of the gunboat Hist, of Admiral Dewey's fleet, in the West Indies.

Mrs. J. P. Jackson, Miss Jackson and Miss L. W. Jackson were passengers on the Trave, which sailed for Europe this morning.

Jottings From Baltimore.

The reception to be given Tuesday evening, January 13, by General and Mrs. Alfred Edwin Booth at their residence at the head of Eutaw Place will be one of the largest given this season in Baltimore, and will have several unique and interesting features.

A delightful entertainment was given by Mrs. William P. Waxter on Monday evening at her residence, 1612 West North Avenue, in honor of Miss Lillian E. Green, of Washington, D. C.

The first cotillon of the Bachelors will take place this evening.

Among the passengers booked to sail for Jamaica per steamship Brookline from Baltimore, Md., today is Mrs. W. E. Dalton.

They are staying at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gundesheimer, 516 Second Street northwest, where they will be pleased to see their friends.

Social Notes From New York.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid will give a dance at her town house on Friday evening, February 6, to introduce formally her daughter, Miss Jean Reid. This dance was scheduled for the first week in January, but owing to the death of Heber R. Bishop, a distant relative of Mrs. Reid, the dance was postponed. Mr. and Mrs. Reid are at present staying in Washington, where Miss Reid is a guest at the White House.

The second of this season's series of the well-known and long-established Junior Cotillions was danced at Sherry's last night, with Alexander Hadden leading the cotillon, and having Miss Marie Montant as his partner. The favors for the one-favor figure were poppies and wheat

It is a well-known fact that November, 1901, was one of the best months in the history of American railroading. The aggregate earnings of the various companies was a record-breaker for that period of the year. The people accepted the showing then as both timely and felicitous. It was a very clear indication of the uninterrupted momentum of the nation's commercial advance. The figures produced a thrill of pride from ocean to ocean, and caused many a silent cheer in honor of our splendid prosperity.

So much of a pessimistic tenor has been uttered during the last few months that the people had prepared themselves to hear bad news. To the astonishment and confusion of the cynics, however, the reports continue to be amazingly good. The figures for December, 1902, of the principal roads in the country, representing over 90,000 miles, show a large increase over the corresponding month of last year. Remember, too, that this increase is on top of the month above alluded to, which had already been reckoned as especially gratifying. It is an increase over the month-boasted results of November, 1901.

Does that look as if prosperity's wave was receding? Does that look as if our business activities were in anywise halt-

Quite a scare has come over some of the teachers and officers, as is always the case when heads of departments are changed, but Mr. Skinner says that he does not intend to make any immediate or violent changes. On this point he said: "The teachers and others need not be alarmed. I think they will readily adapt themselves to the cottage system."

Superintendent Skinner will have his wife, who is said to be an able assistant, and four grown children with him when he is settled. The other employees of the institution are: Jennie M. Roberts, matron; Minnie L. Thompson, matron; Mrs. Elizabeth Risdon, matron; Mrs. Sarah E. Jarvis, assistant matron; Susan R. Scott, supply matron; Mrs. Adelaide Davis, housekeeper; Mary A. Taylor, nursing teacher; Mrs. Ida E. Coyle, nurse; J. V. Rees, carpenter; F. E. Caddell, florist; M. F. Neibel, boys' supervisor; E. N. Rees, engineer; N. S. Allen, gardener; Flora Lee, cook; Hattie Brown, laundress; Alice Cummins, housemaid; Kate Cummins, housemaid; Mrs. Bertha McCallin, temporary teacher in the summer; Mrs. Hul'ah W. Blackford, secretary of the board.

ted to staffs for the girls, and German steins for the men. Mrs. John Hone, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. M. Dwight Collier, Mrs. Arthur Murray Dodge, and Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt composed the reception committee. There was a large attendance, especially of debutantes.

Many dinner parties were given last night in connection with the junior cotillon at Sherry's. Mrs. Hilborne L. Roosevelt, Mrs. James M. Waterbury, Mrs. Auguste P. Montant, Mrs. James T. Gardiner and Mrs. Arthur Sedgwick being among those who afterward took to the dance those whom they had been entertaining at dinner.

The Morro Castle, which arrived in New York yesterday from Havana, brought back a number of boys who spent the holidays in Cuba. Jose Estrada Palma, son of President Palma of Cuba, came from Havana on his way back to college. Stuyvesant, Fish, Jr., and two other Yale students, who made a tour of Cuba, were aboard. They were all well tanned, and agree that Cuba is an excellent place in which to spend a vacation.

The two young sons of Minister Squier also returned on the Morro Castle to resume their studies in the New York schools.

Fidel G. Pierros, the Cuban commissioner to the convention of customs officials at Washington, was another passenger.

PROOF OF SOUND PROSPERITY.

Railway Earnings for the Past Year Indicate a Continuance of Present Roseate Conditions.

During the recent speculative campaign the throats of bearish leaders were strained to soreness in the effort to convince the public that our wave of prosperity had begun to recede. The recent slump in Wall Street was the result. These croakers were the principal cause of the momentary hesitating disposition which was noted in business a few weeks ago. So many pessimistic prophecies naturally inclined tradesmen to pause for awhile to catch their bearings. A close scrutiny of the situation soon brought the conviction that the gloomy wallings were not founded on fact, but were circulated by certain interests for a specific and selfish purpose.

Indeed, evidence during the past several weeks has been cumulative in its confirmation of the statements made by the Wall Street bears. No more excellent testimony can be found than the reports of the railroads. Whenever they are busy it can be marked down as a certainty that domestic commerce is flourishing. That is necessarily true because the earnings of railroads are altogether dependent upon the volume of freightage carried to and fro. If the transportation of freight is exceptionally heavy, it is conclusive proof that an immense interchange of commodities is going on in the country. The more active this interchange of commodities, the more prosperous proportionately is the nation's prosperity.

It is a well-known fact that November, 1901, was one of the best months in the history of American railroading. The aggregate earnings of the various companies was a record-breaker for that period of the year. The people accepted the showing then as both timely and felicitous. ANN ODELIA DIS DE BAR'S HUSBAND'S WILL FILED

Estate She Failed to Secure Goes to Brothers and Sisters.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The will of William J. McGown, husband of Ann Odelia Dis de Bar, who is now in an English prison, has been filed here for probate. The executor is Ebenezer Wakeley.

The instrument was drawn January 16, 1897, a few days before McGown was found dead in the rear room of a deserted building at Sixty-ninth and Page Streets. In explanation of the delay in filing the will, Mr. Wakeley says none of the legatees has chosen to press the matter. He says the estate is large, but does not know the amount.

In the will, C. M. McGown, brother of the dead man, is given one-half of the property. The brothers and sisters are given the remainder.

Dis de Bar met McGown in 1894. She convinced him that spirits had told her that he must marry her. It is said. After the marriage she induced him to sign a power of attorney to allow her to dispose of his property as she and the spirits wished.

Errors were made in the description of the land, which made the instrument invalid.

HOPKINS ASSURED OF ELECTION AS SENATOR

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 7.—John Henry Miller, of McLeanboro, was nominated for speaker of the house in the Forty-third General Assembly by the Republican house caucus held late yesterday.

Mr. Miller received 49 votes and L. G. Sherman 39 votes in the caucus. The nomination of Mr. Miller was made unanimous, and he will be elected speaker in the opening session of the house today.

The Sherman following discussed for over an hour the proposition to bolt the caucus and vote against A. J. Hopkins for Senator in joint session of the legislature, but decided to stick within party lines. Representative Hopkins is now assured of election as Senator to succeed W. E. Mason.

ASHES OF BUDDHA DISENTOMBED.

"It is queer," said a man versed in archaeological matters the other day, "that while so much interest is manifested in archaeological discoveries those being made in India have as yet attracted so little attention. The most important of these is the location of what is undoubtedly the resting place of the ashes of the great Buddha, or one of the resting places. There are said to be as many as eight. The spot was discovered by William Peppe, resident partner and manager of one of the estates in the Far East awarded by the government of India to its supporters. Mr. Peppe caused a deep trench to be dug across a great mound on the property. A huge stone box, topped by an immense slab of stone, was uncovered. Inside the great coffin were found three stone urns or vases, a stone jewel box and a crystal bowl. The vases were filled with fragments of bone, dust, fine ashes, and jewels. One of the vases bore an inscription which, translated, established the fact that the spot was one of the resting places of Buddha's ashes. A pillar erected by the Buddhist Emperor Asoka has also been found, marking the birthplace of Buddha near the site of the long lost city of Kapilavastu."—New York Tribune.

FRIDAY A LUCKY DAY.

A patient German investigator, with the national passion to arrive at facts, made a careful record of all the grave accidents in Germany for the last twelve months. The result is the complete rehabilitation of Friday, which is almost universally regarded as the unluckiest day in the week. The German statistics show that Monday deserves that unenviable distinction. Of the total of 9,948 accidents, Monday heads the list with 1,674, while Friday has fewer than any other day of the week.—New York World.
